

Client Spotlight: Rocky Mountain Reagents

In the heart of laboratory solutions, the legacy of Rocky Mountain Reagents (RMR) unfolds as a compelling narrative of dedication, growth, and commitment. Established in 1951 as S&K Reagents, the company started in the basement, delivering culture media, biological stains, and chemistry solutions to medical facilities in the Denver area.

In 1988, Phyllis Sordelet took the helm, navigating RMR through a transformative journey. The company rebranded as Rocky Mountain Reagents in 1996, diversifying its offerings to include titration reagents, indicators, high purity solvents, acids, and custom manufacturing. In 2020, the company expanded to 46,000 square feet of state-of-the-art warehouse space, enhancing its capacity to offer an extensive range of chemicals and manufacturing capabilities, reinforcing our position in the market. RMR's growth journey mirrors its dedication to meeting customer needs, serving across the Rocky Mountain region and all 50 states.

What sets RMR apart is not just its cutting-edge facility, but the people behind it. The small, privately held company boasts a creative staff that remains flexible, catering to the unique needs of its customers. As a manufacturer, RMR takes pride in offering a diverse line of high-quality products at an economical price, all delivered in a timely manner.

In challenging times, RMR's philosophy shines through — establishing and maintaining responsible, long-term relationships is the number one priority. The company's journey isn't just a success story; it's a testament to innovation, dedication, and the relentless pursuit of excellence in every solution provided to its valued customers.
